

ABSTRACT

In supplying domestic treated water into which domestic wastewater is treated to demanders of the domestic treated water by transporting the domestic treated water as ballast water of a vessel, a match is made between information
5 on domestic treated water to be supplied and information on demanded domestic treated water. The matching result is sent to ship owners of vessels that transport the domestic treated water. Each ship owner decides and offers a sale price and a transport water quantity to demanders. If a transaction is determined, the 10 information on the domestic treated water to be supplied and the information on the demanded domestic treated water are corrected on the basis of the transport water quantity to make a match again. Thus embodied is a method of supporting a transaction of domestic treated water.